Cue Sheet March 2013

- Here is the chatty version of the executive minutes that I already sent out! I apologize to one and all for the unfortunate error – insomnia does make for silly mistakes sometimes...
- The main focus these days is on our spring play, “Sex Please, We’re Sixty.” With the rehearsal schedule over the halfway point now, everyone is starting to get more excited. Tickets are being printed, posters are going up around town, and the props are starting to be gathered. Thank-you to the people who have joined our ranks to help in the production so far. Please note that all the hard work and talent expended so far have not gone unappreciated. One position still remains vacant. Someone is required who would be responsible for all the stage props for the run of the play. For those of you who might not know what that involves, it means getting items ready every night that the actors bring on stage with them (i.e. suitcases, food/drink, etc), and putting it away at the end of every performance. We have a list of all items required already made up, and we already have the majority of the items – all we need is for someone to oversee the items during the play/dress rehearsals.
- Barb Stiles has kindly volunteered to spearhead the Blood Donor Clinic in September. Andrea Jermacans, Su Irving and Monica Cleland have volunteered to help out, but we would like a few more volunteers in order to be sure of a successful day.
- The “Valentine for Lives” February Murder Mystery charity dinner event went well, and everyone had a good time, by all reports.
- On the above note, last month, I asked all lovers of Murder Mysteries to reply to Cathie if they were interested in helping her form a committee to aid in the production of these events. The only response came from ITR president Davis Jermacans, who said that he would take it up with their members. Stay tuned for further updates....
 - And last but certainly never least...what can I say, except farewell to a mentor, a friend, and one fine actor, Hugh Stewart. Always generous with tips, praise, and help if you asked for it (and only if you did!). A wonderful man – Hugh was the first person I met at a booth at the Dandelion Festival when I came to Kemptville. He talked me into joining KPI. Farewell, old friend, from all of us at your KPI family...
